Location 220 Bush Street, Sulphur Springs	Address _ 220 Bush Street
Construction Date c 1896 Survey No. 0572	Sulphur Springs, AR

DESCRIPTION

The Jones House is a two-story, T-shape frame structure, facing east, with a one-story porch wrapping around the stem of the T which forms the south wing. The two main wings of the house have beveled corners two-stories high, topped by brackets supporting the overhanging corners of the steeply pitched roof in the Eastlake manner. Other details common to this late Victorian style are: scrollwork gable ornaments, turned columns, and a spindlework entablature supporting the wrap-around porch. Double-hung windows, all one-over-one, are centered on wall surfaces at both floors. Some of the original form has been altered by additions at the rear of the house. The foundation is of rusticated limestone produced by a nearby quarry.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Criterion: C

Area of significance: Architecture

The Jones House, built c. 1896, has an often-repeated two-story floor plan in familiar frame construction, a form so capable of acting as a "carrier of style". The form can be found throughout this country and the state bearing many of the stylistic varieties of the 19th and early 20th century. The details in this instance are Eastlake, expertly crafted, well maintained, apparently undisturbed except for modest alterations in service areas at the rear of the house. Sited on a generous lot with its landscaping now fully mature, the Jones House is significant as a well-preserved building reflecting the values of a prosperous merchant of this rural community.
